"Many renters don't think they can afford a new home, but with our special offer, purchasing can be more affordable than renting. The number of rentals available in Perth keeps decreasing; consequently, rental rates keep rising. In many cases, it's to the point where renting just doesn't make economic sense anymore," said Bryony Chandler of WA Housing Centre (www.wahousingcentre.com.au).

The house and land package special was designed by WA Housing Centre to help renters escape the rent trap and get into their first home with as little impact on their finances as possible. The builder caters to first home buyers and currently has packages available in 50 Perth suburbs where they have negotiated prices with developers to make buying affordable.

WA Housing Centre house and land package prices are an affordable way to purchase a first home since the price is based on the builder's wholesale prices rather than the open market pricing of established homes. Buyers are able to choose from several suburbs and home designs under this special offer, offering plenty of choices to meet any buyer's needs and budget. The builder is able to tailor packages to buyers' specific needs if they can't find an existing package that they like.

"We wanted to show renters how affordable it can be to own a home. It's much easier to compare rental versus purchase costs when they're broken down by the week than trying to compare weekly or monthly rental costs with the purchase price of a home. We even have in-house loan specialists who can help renters find out how much home they can afford and explain the whole home loan process to them," explained Chandler.

WA Housing Centre has 20 years of experience helping first home buyers become homeowners. The builder provides all home construction services under one roof, including land selection, home design and construction and financing, to make the process easy for buyers and get them into their new homes sooner.
