

Be The CEO Of Your Own Fantasy Premier League

Soccer fans could run their own fantasy leagues for English Premier League 2014/15 with their own rules and colours.

LONDON, UK, August 11, 2014
/EINPresswire.com/ -- We all know that the official Fantasy Premier League is one of the most famous and played fantasy football (soccer) games, with 3 million users. The game obviously benefits from its close proximity with the English Premier League (EPL) itself along with an association with EA Sports.

But this fantasy game has a very simple and ordinary setup. So why don't we try something innovative?

FanXT, a company that develops fantasy sport games, has come up with the platform that empowers EPL fans to create and customise their own fantasy soccer games. It's called Fantasy Premier League Commissioner (<http://fantasy.epl.fanxt.com>), and it lets you be the CEO of your own fantasy league. Unlike typical mini league, you could set your own scoring rules such as for every goal scored, appearance, assist or goal saved, you can decide the fantasy points for each stats. If you think goalkeeper is playing minimal effort in collecting points, you could increase the clean sheet points up to 5 times more than the usual. If you feel like every fantasy EPL websites are offering too little budget to purchase quality players or you think every team should survive with cheaper budget so that they can properly manage their team, then set your own overall budget. For each EPL player on this fantasy soccer engine, you can change their costs. Let say you saw significant jump of performance by Daniel Sturridge, you can increase his value. Not just that, you can also change the position, Daniel Sturridge move to midfielder so that they can save space for more attackers in their team.

League owners are able to design the look and feel of their game with their own colour scheme, logo, advertisement banners, wallpaper image, and also their own subdomain name. Injury report and player transfer news are also available and fantasy points are automatically updated during Premier League matches together with livescores, results, standings and more.

There's a different way to invite your friends to join your league than entering codes. This mini league on steroids has a built-in invitation system where the commissioner can invite friends by entering their friend's emails provided with team name as well. If you find this a little bit complicated, you can just invite your friends via Facebook which is much easier. Anyone in your league can post something on the league's message board. A very suitable piece for you and your friends to thrash talk each or to brag over your team's win.

Best of all, FanXT is making this DIY fantasy sport platform completely free for the entire season for league that is under 10 members. So don't wait any longer and start building your own mini league on steroids. It only takes 3 minutes! To test drive with a demo account, please visit, <http://fantasy.epl.fanxt.com>.
