Armor Shield PVC tiles, the newest flooring products from Armor Garage, was selected for installation at the Kyger Creek power station in Cheshire, Ohio.

SUNNY ISLES BEACH, FL, USA, August 27, 2014 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Armor Shield PVC floor tiles, one of the newest flooring products offering by industrial flooring supplier, Armor Garage, was selected by the operators of the Kyger Creek power plant to resurface the turbine deck of their power station. This new Armor Garage product is an interlocking PVC tile that is treated with a proprietary anti-stain additive that makes the tiles slip resistant and stain resistant.

Armor Garage has been working on the proprietary formula used in Armor Shield for the past four years. This additive is a chemical compound that is injected into the tile during the molding process, making it effective throughout the entire tile. In addition to making the tiles glossy, slip-resistant and stain resistant, Armor Shield treated tiles are also self extinguishing so they are virtually fireproof.

The Kyger Creek plant required approximately 45,000 square feet of Armor Garage PVC tiles, which amazingly were completely installed in less than two weeks.

Armor Garage owner, James Olympios, said this in commenting on his company's new product, "Our proprietary Armor Shield anti-stain additive will make traditional tile coatings obsolete both from a cost and performance perspective." He then added, "It is extremely gratifying for everyone in the company when we win a contract such as the Kyger Creek flooring job. It shows that our clients recognize the important differences that our products deliver."

As with all Armor Garage products, their Armor Shield treated PVC tiles have been thoroughly tested, made for heavy duty jobs and built to last a lifetime. In addition to the fast and easy installation the Armor Shield treated flooring also saved the operators of the plant a significant amount of money. Compared to other options, such as an epoxy floor, Armor Garage tiles are a quarter of the price. They also carry a lifetime guarantee. Epoxy floors have a lifespan of approximately 10 years.
