ASHFORD, KENT, UK, August 28, 2014 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Garden sheds in Kent creators, Ace Sheds, now offer customers from the county along with Essex, Sussex, West Sussex and London a range of building treatment for the treatment of sheds, timber workshops and summer houses. The shed company can offer customers a range of treatment from Ronseal. The treatment is part of a partnership between Ronseal and the Woodland Trust who have developed a range garden colours to protect the wood and building in a customer's garden.

The inspired products are said to have long lasting and fade resisting colours which have been made and developed to complement Ace Sheds customer's natural colours within the garden. Ace Sheds say that the fade resistant formulation locks colour into the customers garden wood with an opaque matt finish that will allow the characteristics of the wood to shine above all. The Ashford based business also say that the durable formula resists cracking and peeling. The treatment is said to deliver longevity within the colour. The added waxes make the treatment waterproof and protect the exterior wood from the stress of any weather or poor conditions.

Ace Sheds say that the treatment is ideal for use on any garden softwood, in which applies to the garden sheds in Kent that they build, along with the timber workshops and summer houses that are built from scratch. The product can be applied via the customer onto rough sawn timber or smooth planed wood – this includes fences, trellis, garden furniture, planters and arches. Customers are to apply 2 coats with a drying time of 1 – 2 hours, being 4 times re-coatable. Ace Sheds have made 16 different colours and types of building treatment available to their customers.
