

Hop On The Growing Trend Of Korean Ceramics In The US

Soulful Ceramics is gaining in popularity among pottery lovers and unique giftware seekers.

MERCER ISLAND, WA, USA, September 10, 2014 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Soulful Ceramics (www.soulfulceramics.com), an online store specializing in Korean ceramic ware, is gaining in popularity with pottery lovers and unique giftware seekers for their line of premium handcrafted Korean ceramics. For their recently launched store, Soulful Ceramics founder Hanna Jun traveled throughout the small pottery villages of Korea to hand-select artisan ceramic wares. Her aim is to cater to the growing number of ceramic enthusiasts looking for handmade, unique, and upcoming designs of Korean ceramics.

"The unique quality of Korean ceramicists is that they are also accomplished painters," states Jun. "Using clay as the canvas for their artwork brings the pottery to life and offers dazzling quality and hand craftsmanship to everyday items like cups and saucers, tea light candle holders, and decorative vases. Chinese and Japanese ceramics are common and popular but Korean ceramics offer an artistic appeal that is difficult to find in the United States," concludes Jun.

An analysis via Google Trends reveals that Japanese and Chinese ceramics, while popular, have been in terminal decline since 2004. On the other hand, Korean ceramics received no meaningful data until it burst onto the scene in 2010. The demand has been consistent since. A deeper analysis shows that a search query for Japanese ceramics yields 16.5 million results compared to 10.2 million for "China ceramics" and 5.2 million for "Korean ceramics".

Jun will continue to travel throughout Korea to discover additional ranges of products and source the finest in cup and saucer sets, tea infuser mugs, candle holders, utensil holders, mini oil lamps, vases, and even ceramic fashion accessories. "I love the heart and soul that is poured out into every piece," said Jun. "It makes every piece significant and makes for the perfect gift for a
