

RadioMD is Awarded 'Best In Industry' 2014 New Media Award

RadioMD.com, known as the "talking" health information resource on the Internet, was recognized by the New Media Institute (NMI) as "Best in Industry."

ROLLING MEADOWS, IL, USA, September 11, 2014

/EINPresswire.com/ -- RadioMD.com, known as the "talking" health information resource on the Internet, was recognized by the New Media Institute (NMI) as "Best in Industry" in the New Media, Web category of "Health News & Information." This news follows RadioMD's announcement last month that it now has an exclusive, 24-7 streaming audio channel on iHeartRadio.

In just two years' time since its founding in 2012, RadioMD has partnered with some of the top medical and wellness experts and organizations to include Dr. Michael Roizen, The Academy of Nutrition and Dietetics, The American Academy of Pediatrics, EmpowHER and Sharecare among many others. RadioMD offers professionally produced, health & wellness shows that feature well-known guests and experts, providing its listeners with information to help them better-understand everyday health issues as well as complex medical conditions, in an easy-to-understand and entertaining way.

Upon accepting the award, Tim Disa, Sr., radio veteran and RadioMD founder, said, "This award validates all of the hard work our entire staff has put into RadioMD. It is an honor to be recognized in this way, knowing that we are bringing vitally important 'health talk' programming to the world in a unique and compelling way that is informative as well as entertaining."

As RadioMD sets the standard for Internet radio and continues to expand its offering of "all that is health and wellness," it not only provides a voice to physicians, health & wellness experts, hospitals and medical organizations, it is also a 24/7 resource for those who have questions about their health.
