

Apex Direct Announces $500 Scholarship for College Students

Apex Direct, an authorized dealer of ADT, is offering a scholarship to enrolled college students who can provide insight on the future of home security.

SOUTHERN PINES, NC, USA, September 18, 2014

/EINPresswire.com/ -- Apex Direct, an authorized retailer of ADT Monitored Home Security, is pleased to announce a $500 scholarship available for all currently enrolled college students to participate in. As technology of all types continue to expand into seemingly unimaginable realms, the same applies to advancements in home technology.

ADT Pulse, a leading security automation system, has made it possible for homeowners to handle the truly important aspects of living. From a cellphone or tablet device, homeowners can manage everything from lighting, heat, security, and more. While this technology is highly advanced, it is certainly not at the end of possibilities.

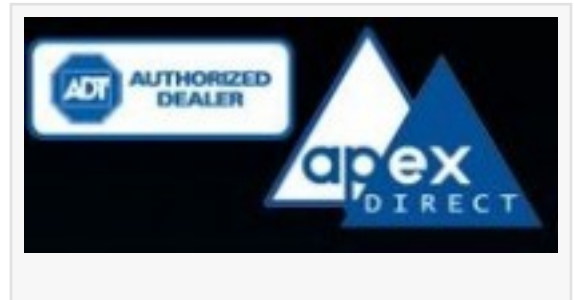

The student who wins this scholarship will have the ability to provide an insightful essay on where he or she believes the direction of home security is going within the next decade. How will the world of mobile technology continue to shape how we live at home? How do you think the world of home security can potentially improve society as a whole?

Answers should be submitted in essay form with a word length of at least 500 words, and personal stories related to this subject are encouraged to be shared.

Individuals who are eligible for consideration are currently enrolled at a college/university, or will be enrolling in the next upcoming semester. Candidates have until December 31, 2014 to apply. Those who are interested can visit the Apex Direct $500 educational scholarship Page for more details.
