Healed1.com has developed a supplement intended to help reduce the amount of elective facelift surgeries that people opt for better looking skin with a daily dietary supplement made from safe and natural compounds called phytoceramides.

Ceramides are actually already present in skin from the day that a person is born. However, as the body ages ceramide levels in skin decrease resulting in it becoming drier, wrinkled and the appearance of more fine lines. Clinical studies indicate that oral phytoceramides taken daily can improve the appearance of wrinkles and help the skin look smoother and more youthful.

Even Dr. Oz weighed in on effectiveness of Phytoceramides. For example, he said on a segment of his show called “How To Fake a Facelift” originally airing on November 1st, 2012 that phytoceramides “hydrated your skin from the inside out, diminishing the appearance of wrinkles [and were] better than a scapel [facelift].”

“Unfortunately, because they don’t know about natural and effective options many people decide to go with Botox or even more extreme measures like facelift surgery in an effort to appear younger. But phytoceramides can turn the tide against the hardships of aging and are completely non-invasive and safe to use.” says Daniel Hall, founder of Healed1.com. “Likewise exciting is new research indicating that phytoceramides may improve cognitive and memory functions, it’s because phytoceramide capsules have shown to be so effective that we at Healed1.com have developed our own line available exclusively on Amazon.com. Best of all,” said Hall, a trained nurse, “our phytoceramide supplements are made from the same plant derived base (lipowheat) and in the same exact dosage (350mg) as recommended by most doctors.”

To celebrate the launch of its new line of phytoceramides, Hall said the company was making a limited number of coupon codes for a percentage off the first order. To claim a coupon code be claimed here or see the Healed1.com phytoceramides on Amazon.com.
