Local author D.K. Caldwell has recently teamed up with Tate Publishing to kick-start the publication process of his new book DB-29.

In the book DB-29, Caldwell creates a fictional character through a Cancer Researcher, Dean Bradley. Bradley finally finds a cure for cancer but finds himself fighting against powerful forces who are willing to take him down for their own selfish gain.

“The thrill and the need to know what happens next will keep you from putting the book down. It is intense... you will definitely want to know what happens to Bradley and the cure,” said Raimie McDaniel, the acquisitions editor for the book.

Caldwell started writing DB-29 two years ago while his son was also doing Cancer Research at that time. This inspired him to write a story about someone who has actually found a cure for the disease that has plagued the human race for a century.

Published by Tate Publishing and Enterprises, the book will be available upon its release through bookstores nationwide, from the publisher at www.tatepublishing.com/bookstore, or by visiting barnesandnoble.com or amazon.com.

D.K. Caldwell is a retired electrical engineer from Arkansas. He and his wife have been married for forty years and have two children. Caldwell's first book GAMA ONE inspired him to start up writing despite his being a dyslexic.
