

North Carolina author Racquel Williams gives parents and children insight on unplanned pregnancies and interventions

Local author, Racquel Williams has come in partnership with Tate to release her new book, "Get Your Hands Out Of My Pockets".

RALEIGH, N.C.--, UNITED STATES, December 9, 2014 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Raleigh, N.C. -- Local author, Racquel Williams has come in partnership with Tate to release her new book, "Get Your Hands Out Of My Pockets".

A book designed by Williams to influence and shape public policy and reach moms all across the United States, "Get Your Hands Out of My Pocket," serves as a pregnancy-prevention-slash-parent-intervention book for the youth and young adults.

"I was perplexed by the dynamics that I found myself dealing with. I had to peel the layers and get into the nitty-gritty of who we are culturally and why we behave the way we do," shares Williams on the inspiration behind the book.

A timeless read... "Get Your Hands Out of My Pocket" is a mother and daughter must-have.

Acquisitions Editor*

"Racquel Williams gives us a timeless read for teenagers to raise awareness on unplanned pregnancies, "Get Your Hands Out of My Pocket" is a mother and daughter must-have," states Raimie McDaniel, Acquisitions Editor for Tate Publishing.

Published by Tate Publishing and Enterprises, the book will be available upon its release, through bookstores nationwide, from the publisher at www.tatepublishing.com/bookstore, or by visiting barnesandnoble.com or amazon.com.

Racquel Williams is a successful business owner, author and motivational speaker. She is the founder and president of Can I Live, Inc., an organization that advocates for people struggling from poverty and its effects and provides training and ongoing support to help them transition to become self-reliant leaders who learn to advocate for themselves and others. She currently serves as an appointed civic commissioner where she lends her time and talents—chairing the Housing Authority of The County of Wake (HACW).

Through her profession, she empowers thousands of young women and single parents to pursue success in life through education and a healthy lifestyle. Rachel is a single mother of 4 children and gives her knowledge on the issues facing the economically disadvantaged. She knows first-hand the sacrifice and hard work necessary to see real personal change, and she wants to share her story with you.
