

Middle East National Security

ABU DHABI, UNITED ARAB EMIRATES, January 7, 2015 /EINPresswire.com/ -- During the past few years, national security measures have become crucial in the Middle East due to the increase of terrorism threats, drug trafficking and cyber attacks in the region. This has encouraged governments to increase the scope of activities and funding for these important areas.

The National Security Middle East Summit, taking place from 31 March - 2 April in Abu Dhabi, UAE, will not only provide an interactive platform for local governments, police and industry leaders to address the urgent challenges relating to national security, but will also reward prestigious professionals in the defence industry for their outstanding performance through the newly-launched National Security Awards.
