

FlingsRus, Discreet Dating

SYDNEY, AUSTRALIA, January 14, 2015 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Online dating services are certainly not a new concept, but most of them use the same principle and usually require participants to post their information like name, a telephone number or email address.

FlingsRus is the 1st functioning voice dating app, which brings a new trend in standard dating. It is a new concept, but it was brought into life, it is up and running smoothly.

FlingsRus is a discreet way for lonely people, or people who just want someone to share an evening with, to meet and have fun without having to divulge personal information.

The way FlingsRus works is that people fill out a questionnaire that matches them with people who have similar interests and desires. After completing the form, they go through a list of people, make a selection, and record a voice message giving a time and place to meet. Its goal is to minimize the amount of time between filling out the online application and making the initial contact. They bill themselves as a fast dating service, so their goal is to minimize the time between logging into the service and making contact. They are the perfect answer for out-of-town business people, newly divorced or just plain lonely individuals who are having a hard time finding that perfect person.

Alexey Prokopenko at FlingsRus is teaming up with Linked Businesses Pty to make their service even better. In addition to using a voice message to decide whether or not a selected person is the one with which a user would like to spend the evening, they would like to enable making that magical connection even easier and faster by using a telephone app that will let participants dial straight through using a new FlingsRus application. They have created a Kickstarter Crowdfunding campaign to help finance improving the software. The program runs on iOS and on Android platforms currently. The finance will make use of existing voice technology to help people make online calls to other people quickly in the real time.

Kickstarter supporters can make contributions at any level, but there are some very interesting rewards for this particular campaign. These include a caricature picture of you that will be displayed on the FlingsRus website, a Diamond level membership in the FlingsRus dating club, specially highlighted listings – so that you will stand out from the crowd, your business logo displayed on the FlingsRus website for six months, an original FlingsRus oil painting (limit three – only available while supplies last), and finally an invitation to a FlingsRus party that will be held in New York – you have to pay your own airfare and lodging.

The teams at FlingsRus and Linked Businesses Pty believe that it will only be a matter of time before they have the system up and running. They are confident that there will be no problems at all on their end of developing the software application. The only potential difficulties might lie on the user's end of the program in the form of slow Internet connections, or sound optimization.

Yes, dating services have been around for a while – even before the Internet. But FlingsRus would like to make sure that their members can make new friends quickly, so that no evening ever again needs to be lonely. Business people who need a date for an event, people who just need someone to talk with, can find someone with whom to share time anywhere, anywhen. Using the app should be even easier than ordering take-out – and a lot more satisfying!

There are a lot of lonely people in the world – people who need a companion for an hour or two, a guide to help them learn about a new city or perhaps to find that perfect soul mate. The app helps sift through the many people who sign up for FlingsRus and to find your most perfect match quickly. Once you have made a selection, their next goal is to allow you to hear their voice and then to meet with limited amounts of standing around and waiting. With this handy little software application, no one should have to spend an evening alone, watching reruns or staring at the walls in a motel room again. It isn't too often that Kickstarter participants get a chance to play Cupid, but this program is the perfect opportunity!

About: FlingsRus (www.flingsrus.com) is a personal dating service that is run through the Internet. It is teaming up with Linked Businesses PTY LTD to create a software program to improve the efficiency and discretion of its service.
