: Forensic Pest Control has announced that the company has started using a new and much more effective pest removal method for numerous common pests in Sydney

KINGSLANGLEY, NSW, AUSTRALIA, January 23, 2015 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Forensic Pest Control which is one of the leading pest control services operating out of Sydney has announced that they have started using a new and much more effective pest control method. Though the company has not exactly specified what new method they may be using, they have said that the new method is not harmful to humans unlike other dangerous chemicals used. However, the company has specified that the new method is twice as effective at eliminating an array of pests which include rodents, pigeons and roaches among many others.

Forensic Pest Control is one of the most established and reputed pest control services in Sydney. Over the years they have been responsible for eliminating pests in homes, offices and industrial complexes. The company is especially famous for their ability to completely eradicate an array of pests in a short period of time. Their high success rate can easily be attributed to the fact that they keep innovating. Innovative new methods like the ones they have recently introduced continue to be increasingly effective where others may simply fail. However, the company has said that they continue to focus on researching more precise methods to eliminate pests without causing harm to domestic pets and humans.

Forensic Pest Control is also known to price their services extremely competitively. Over the past few years their price to quality ratio is what has allowed them to rise up as being one of the best and the company of choice for many businesses and home owners in the city. Though the company does not specify what methods they use, they do in fact emphasize that these methods are better than what was used before and much better than what is used by their competitors. An increasing number of people who refer the services to their friends and family members is testament to their effective methods and trustworthiness.

Forensic Pest Control is an Australian owned and operated business with years of experience in the pest control industry. The company is operated by a team of highly reputed specialists who over the years have been known to successfully eliminate some of the most stubborn of pests from properties across Australia. The company also boasts of offering excellent customer services in addition to great pest control services. The constant feedback coupled with their innovative spirit is what has allowed them to rise over all the others.
