

ACB Praises U.S. House of Representatives for Reintroducing Legislation to Cover Low Vision Aids under Medicare

(American Council of the Blind)

ARLINGTON, VA, USA, February 5, 2015 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Late yesterday afternoon Representatives Carolyn Maloney (D-N.Y.) and Gus Bilirakis (R-Fla.) re-introduced H.R. 729, the Medicare Demonstration of Coverage for Low Vision Devices Act of 2015. This bill seeks to right a wrong that the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS) have perpetrated for many years through the denial of coverage of low-vision devices for Medicare recipients. CMS has elected to very narrowly interpret the regulations so that devices that have one or more lenses are treated the same as ordinary eyeglasses.

Kim Charlson, president of the American Council of the Blind (ACB), said, "These tools are often essential for individuals with low vision who, without the aid of assistive technology, cannot read prescriptions, medicine bottles, and other important materials containing information that is vital to their personal health and safety as well as read their mail, pay bills, etc. ACB is grateful to Representatives Maloney and Bilirakis for their continued advocacy on this critical issue that impacts so many, especially those individuals who age into vision loss. Without the aid of such assistive devices, many more individuals will be forced into assisted living facilities as our population ages. Seniors on fixed incomes often find the cost of such devices burdensome and therefore are unlikely to be able to afford to purchase them on their own."

H.R.729 would do the following.

- Individuals would be eligible to participate in the demonstration project only after completing a low-vision exam performed by a physician who would then deem a low-vision device as medically necessary.
- It would allow reimbursement for certain low-vision devices that are the most function-rich, most powerful, and most expensive.
- The legislation would evaluate, through a five-year national demonstration project administered by the Department of Health and Human Services, the fiscal impact of a permanent change to the Social Security Act.

The national demonstration project is designed to provide a rich, well-structured and defined data set that can yield Medicare-program-wide evidence-based conclusions using appropriate statistical methods.
