

Celebrities Debuted Their Post-Baby Bodies at The Oscars

NEW YORK CITY, NEW YORK, USA , February 23, 2015 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Last night at The Oscars some of the hottest celebrities debuted their unbelievable post-baby bodies, three women in particular are just shy of giving birth within the last 6 months. It raises the question and makes people wonder, 'Did these women have plastic surgery?' Celebrities have been giving real women unrealistic expectations for years but last night was an entirely new level. You have Zoe Saldana who just gave birth to twins less than 3 months ago, looking nearly back to her pre-baby self. Then there's Rosamund Pike of 'Gone Girl' fame who looked absolutely stunning and gave birth back in September. Scarlett Johansson is in the same boat as Rosamund, she also gave birth in September and walked red carpet with a perfectly svelte figure maybe better than she looked before having her daughter. Kudos to these ladies, but it truly is a lot of pressure for the average woman. A lot of women come into Taranow Plastic Surgery wanting to look like these celebrities and wanting to know more about how they can achieve this so quickly after pregnancy, our answer is, the Mommy Makeover. Mommy Makeovers have become very popular over the last 5 years, which combines 2-3 procedures into one, lowering the cost and recovery time. "I'm sure diet and exercise had a lot to do with the mentioned celebrities, but I wouldn't be surprised if some of them had a nip and tuck here or there," says Dr. Douglas A. Taranow.
