“My older son, Daryl, inspired me and requested that I write our family’s story for him. Daryl did not want our story lost in the annals of history; but instead become a significant part of the history of Odessa, Texas,” shares Elayne.

“Dreams Fulfilled” is a historic and a revolutionary write-up that shows how the Hunts were the first African-American couple to ever exercise the Civil Rights Act of 1964 to support the right to purchase property in a previously all Anglo-homogeneous neighborhood located in Odessa, Texas, without fear. Together with a couple from a larger community, Elayne and her husband was able to overturn discrimination in housing and helped them to strongly encourage the county school district to carry out the plans they submitted to the federal government—which was approved.

Published by Tate Publishing and Enterprises, the book is available through bookstores nationwide, from the publisher at www.tatepublishing.com/bookstore, or by visiting barnesandnoble.com or amazon.com.
