

The Children Teach Them Well, Changing Children's Lives

MANILA, PHILIPPINES , March 6, 2015 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Over the past several years the Philippines has been ravaged by a continuing series of decimating natural disasters. The Philippines suffers from unfortunate geography as it is located along the Pacific Ring of Fire. The Pacific Ring of Fire is an area which features over 75 percent of the volcanoes on Earth. In addition an incredible 90 percent of the earthquakes on the planet occur along the Ring of Fire. The serious and deadly events which occur in this area include landslides, tsunamis and typhoons among many other sources of major destruction. The situation is so difficult that Executive Order 137 was enacted to recognize July as National Disaster Consciousness Month in the Philippines. July is a particularly troublesome month as it sees a surge in floods and typhoon activity. The aftermath of these disasters often leads to poverty and even death for the population.

KL Williams is working diligently to make a difference for the long-suffering people of the Philippines. His current goal is to make a gripping and honest documentary titled The Children Teach Them Well. The people most affected by the tragic conditions in parts of the Philippines are children. They are the most vulnerable group. Nothing is more vital than education to improving the overall condition of a society. Currently there is a significant amount of assistance needed to bring both books and school supplies to the children. In many cases these supplies are non-existent. These children love to read and the axiom holds true that the more you read, the more you know. Schools also need more instructional materials such as projectors. Many of the parents of these students are farmers who have been plagued by drought. In many cases these parents are well-meaning but they do not have the resources to buy school supplies. In our modern world having a working knowledge of computers is mandatory to compete in a global marketplace. Left without computers these students will fall behind their peers.

The Children Teach Them Well is a documentary which will revolve around how children are directly impacted by natural disasters. For example when many parts of the Philippines were devastated by typhoons, more families were thrown into extreme poverty. Faced with no choice but to rebuild, The Children Teach Them Well delivers real stories of reshaping and rebuilding homes and lives. Once filming is complete, the documentary will be made available for download online. Some of the funds from The Children Teach Them Well will go towards much needed materials for classrooms in the Philippines. The final video project will focus on the economic, political and social aspects of living in the Philippines as a child. KL Williams has forged a relationship with a Philippine production company in order to ensure a professional quality documentary.

KL Williams is qualified to deliver a sincere and honest portrayal of life in the Philippines. He has worked in the fields of law enforcement, emergency management, teaching and video production. The father of three holds four college degrees in disciplines from sociology to criminal justice. In his role with the Institute of Justice and Accountability, KL Williams has proven his moral fiber. The goal of the institute is to inform and inspire real change in communities and assist those who want to have continued success. By training those in law enforcement and citizen's groups, KL Williams is dedicated to helping those who sacrifice for others. This improvement in community and police involvement is a vital part of the restoring parts of the Philippines. A James Baldwin quote best summarizes KL William's beliefs "not everything that is faced can be changed but nothing can be changed until it is faced."

The Children Teach Them Well is both a fascinating look at the Philippines and a means to give aid to children who are in dire need of assistance. There is a Kickstarter crowdfunding campaign taking place until March 22nd in order to support the creation of this documentary. This funding will have a direct impact on families in the Philippines and showcase the need for even greater assistance. A crowdfunding donation of 25 dollars comes with one download of this gripping video documentary.

About:

KL Williams is a holder of four college degrees and the visionary behind the documentary The Children Teach Them Well. The purpose of this documentary is to showcase the direct impact of typhoons and other disasters on the people of the Philippines. There is currently a Kickstarter crowdfunding campaign in place in order to assist with the creation of the documentary.

KL Williams

The Children Teach Them Well

The Children Teach Them Well

email us here

This press release can be viewed online at: <http://www.einpresswire.com>

Disclaimer: If you have any questions regarding information in this press release please contact the company listed in the press release. Please do not contact EIN Presswire. We will be unable to assist you with your inquiry. EIN Presswire disclaims any content contained in these releases.

© 1995-2015 IPD Group, Inc. All Right Reserved.