In the run up to the conference, SMi Group asked Mr. Jiri Hynek, President, Defence and Security Industry Association of the Czech Republic (DSIA), a few questions about the current challenges and opportunities for the armoured vehicles market and the Czech Republic's defence industry in general.

SMi: What recent acquisitions do you think have strengthened the Czech Republic's Armoured Vehicle Fleet and why?

J.Hynek.: The most numerous, the most visible and therefore the most important AFVs are Pandurs. They create a backbone of the Czech mechanized troops. From available information they proved to fulfil operational requirements during missions abroad. Based on an agreement with original producer the Czech company Excalibur Army acquired authorisation to produce and maintain Pandurs for...
