

Pedagoogy 3000 World Tour for a New Education and Peace Alliance to Include Canada Cities

Conference to Help Teachers, Parents Learn New Tools to Educate Today's Children, Relieve Stress, Increase Participation, Lower School Violence

TORONTO, ONTARIO, CANADA, August 12, 2015 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Noemi Paymal, French anthropologist and creator of Pedagoogy 3000 (P3000), will include several Canada cities as part of the P3000 2015 World Tour to conduct conferences on changes in children of the third millennium. P3000 is an integral education that addresses the needs of today's children and youth by using holistic education and bio-intelligent tools. Currently, it is being implemented in countries worldwide including Argentina, Australia, Brazil, Mexico, Peru, Spain, Uruguay, Venezuela, and others, in over 34 cities, in hundreds of schools, in a formal and informal fashion.

"New generations have an overwhelming amount of cases of infant depression, youth suicide, teacher absenteeism, school violence" said Paymal in a recent interview. She added, "Also there are 'new illnesses' such as infant schizophrenia, infant stress and epilepsy, violence, self-destruction and the infamous and controversial ADDH (Attention Deficit Disorder and Hyperactivity) which is increasing, along with school phobia, social disorder, autism, Asperger, and general disorder."

According to research conducted by P3000, the vast majority of teachers around the world seek more practical pedagogical tools that suit real needs. They require educational packages and tools for Non-Violent Communication (NVC) that relieve both stress for teachers as well as children and young people, and reduce the level of school violence. Parents also require updated information and entertaining pedagogical tools to implement at home. Society in general searches for new patterns and paradigms that will increase the standard of living and welfare of its citizens, while restoring a sustainable Peace Culture so necessary in this planet, as well as authentic ecological and multicultural awareness.

The goal of the tour, which includes more than 33 countries, is to:

- Raise worldwide awareness regarding the needs of children, a better understanding of their physiological, psycho-emotional and neurological changes, providing the latest information from doctors, psychologists and educators from around the world
- Better address said needs through an integral education
- Present practical tools for an integral, fun, inclusive and proactive education, with a multicultural approach to promote Peace Culture
- Set the basis for an educational project called "5 Continents for a New Education and Peace Culture" and to introduce Pedagoogy 3000 and emAne
- Widen an all-embracing network with alliances around the world, driven solidarity, consciousness and love, linking continents and countries through Education and Peace Culture

Canada cities to be visited in September 2015 include Toronto (17), Montreal (18 and 19) and Vancouver (23 to 27). Activities for the tour are a series of meetings and interviews, conferences and workshops (conducted in English and Spanish, separately) with Pedagoogia 3000® and UNESCO (underway) accreditation.

Countries where conferences have been previously held during this tour include Belgium, Bulgaria, Romania, Turkey, Egypt, South Africa, United Arab Emirates, India, Nepal, Hong Kong-China, Malaysia, Australia, and New Zealand.

Research results since 2001 have been gathered in the Pedagoogy 3000 book, and is available in English, Spanish, Portuguese, French and in a summarized version in Arabic and Mandarin. In addition, 5 mini-books, 33 practical workbooks, as well as 22 videos, 2 TV and 20 radio programs offered free to the public. Electronic newsletters are sent to 44 countries each month. UNESCO Centre Foundation for Human Rights Training, Worldwide Citizenship and Peace Culture endorses P3000 as an integral education proposition that truly addresses the four pillars of education: learning to know, do, co-exist and be. It offers training in P3000 within its platform, virtually and semi-present.
