/EINPresswire.com/ -- Once again the criminal mind shows that its methods are ever changing and are becoming more and more sophisticated. Bodies, half frozen and half charred, are showing up at New York City's largest and most frequently used garbage dump.

Ralph Bloom and his team are faced with an enemy that is faceless, and with little clues to go on, they must solve and bring to justice one of the city's most heinous criminals. Only one mistake is all they need to bring the downfall of the mysterious Mr. Nomed and his twin henchmen. Follow the mind numbing case to its final end. ANYONE...could be their next victim...could it be YOU?

Gallin's detective series starts out with 'Anything' and was followed by 'Nothing'. Olmstead Publishing then produced 'Something', 'Everything', and now, 'Anyone'. Soon the series will be continued with 'No One', 'Someone', and 'Everyone'. The main characters in the series include, Lieutenant Ralph Bloom, Sergeant Alan Beckman, and FBI Agent

Gina Grant. Watch what happens between the main characters as their relationships grow and change.

Each book is stand alone as far as the crimes go, but the detectives are woven in throughout the five, soon to be eight, volumes. Motorcycle gangs, fogs, explosive cell phones, freezers and microwaves become important features in the various books. The various topics make these books appeal to a wide audience.
