

State of the Art Himalayan Salt Cave Created in Denver

Denver, Colorado – Residents of Denver now have a new option for improving their health and achieving maximum relaxation.

DENVER, COLORADO, USA, September 2, 2015 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Denver, Colorado – Residents of Denver now have a new option for improving their health and achieving maximum relaxation. Dr. Margaret Smiechowski, North America’s foremost expert on salt caves, is pleased to announce her latest Himalayan salt cave creation, 5 Star Salt Caves.

“This cave is a unique design, one of kind, and includes state of the art technology,” says Smiechowski. “I am proud to say this is my best creation yet.”

5 Star Salt Caves is owned by Markus Bohunovsky and Stephanie Pham. They learned about the health benefits of Himalayan salt caves while on a trip to Vienna, Austria. Bohunovsky’s mother recommended they experience Salzgrotte LA MAR, the local salt cave, because of his cough. After visiting, a suppressed cough was not the only benefit received.

Pham says, “Soon after laying down on a lounge chair, I felt an out of this world quality. I drifted off and felt deeply relaxed.”

After leaving the Salzgrotte LA MAR, the couple decided they would start their own salt cave in the U.S. The couple knew they wanted an expert to design them a state of the art, natural-looking cave after visiting numerous salt spas across the country. This is when they contacted Dr. Smiechowski about creating one of her masterpieces in Denver.

Denver’s new salt cave will consists of a 360-square-foot den with walls and floors lined with pink Himalayan rock salt. Patrons can experience fifty-minutes of Halotherapy and relaxation for only thirty-five dollars. It is perfectly located at 722 S. Pearl St., Denver, CO 80209 in the West Wash Park area.
