

Dr. Joseph Castleberry, Releases The New Pilgrims,

Explains How Immigrants Are Impacting America's Government, Schools, Economy And Churches

NASHVILLE, TENNESSE, USA, September 15, 2015 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Nashville, Tenn. – September 15st, 2015 - Dr. Joseph Castleberry, is currently President of Northwest University. Dr. Castleberry embarked on his journey to higher education and ministry as a youth pastor in Princeton, NJ. and went on to become a chaplain at Princeton University. He was a missionary educator and church planter in El Salvador and Ecuador as well as a seminary dean. Dr. Castleberry has released a new book that will become a major influence in understanding the impact of immigrants in America titled, The New Pilgrims.

In The New Pilgrims, Dr. Castleberry provides an understanding of how immigrants are contributing to the renewal of American faith through the positive contributions they are making to our churches, families, schools, politics, and the economy. Dr. Castleberry addresses the reader not only from a Christian perspective, but also from a practical point of view, detailing the significant impact immigrants are having on American society.

Dr. Castleberry says, "Unless people look beyond the sensationalist headlines and consider the whole context of immigrants in America, both in history and in the present, they will never see the true, ongoing contribution of immigrants, both legal and undocumented, to America's greatness."

According to Andrew Young, Civil Rights Leader, Former U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations, and Mayor of Atlanta "The New Pilgrims provides a brilliant analysis of the religious and spiritual impact of immigrants on society in the United States. I believe this book will expand our understanding of the true meaning of Christianity, strengthen our faith in God, and respect the religious diversity reinforced by immigrants. I congratulate Joe Castleberry for this wonderful piece of literature."

Dr. Joseph Castleberry is an educator, minister, visionary, author, public speaker, innovator, and thought leader in both the religious and education communities. Dr. Castleberry has spoken at many conferences in America as well as around the world. Dr. Castleberry recently presented a paper at a conference on the rule of law sponsored by the National Commission on Human Rights in Mexico.

The New Pilgrims is being published in both English and Spanish by Worthy Publishing Group (www.worthypublishing.com) Worthy Publishing Group is a privately held, independent voice in
