

Legal GcMAF to be launched worldwide as GcMAFSynthetic™ by The Longevity Revolution™

launch expected November 2015

WORLDWIDE, WORLDWIDE, WORLDWIDE, October 21, 2015 /EINPresswire.com/ -- The Longevity Revolution™ is an established worldwide supplier and manufacturer of scientifically researched longevity supplements and longevity research peptides.

They operate a worldwide co-researchers club which is free to join and makes available to their members many cutting edge scientifically researched natural longevity supplements and synthetic bio-identical versions of natural peptides.

They are planning to launch, within the next few weeks, a synthetic analogue of GcMAF which caused recent heated controversy when a different version of it was supplied by another company who were accused of breaching regulatory laws.

The synthetic version to be launched by

The Longevity Revolution™ is a bio-identical peptide called GcMAFSynthetic™ with the same molecular structure as GcMAF found naturally in food and in the human body but is made in a specialised peptide laboratory as a dietary supplement and does not use any animal products, human products, or human blood extract which caused most of the recent controversy.

It is being priced at £99.99 per bottle including free worldwide delivery and is claimed by the manufacturer to be "a revolutionary price breakthrough offering an unprecedented quantity and quality of ingredients together with value for money."

The company will also be offering a two tiered affiliate plan for their whole range of products under what they are calling The STAN PLAN (Spread The Amazing News) for recruiting new open minded and informed researchers to their club.

GcMAF has had 25 years of research in the scientific community since it was discovered and as a dietary supplement is found naturally in food and in the bodies of at least six million healthy people on the planet. Research papers have been published by hundreds of eminent scientists that refer to it but, until recently, these have been largely ignored. As a natural human peptide it can't be patented by the pharmaceutical industry to give them financial exclusivity to it. Recent changes in patent law in the USA has recognised that an exact molecular synthetic version of a natural peptide can no longer be patented either.
