

A RETIRED 72 YEARS OLD HAS DEDICATED THE REST OF HIS LIFE TO CLEANING UP THE OCEAN AND EARTH FOR THE CHILDREN'S FUTURE

"His new love for art inspired him to turn polluted floats into marketable art and he is using the profits to clean up garbage in polluted areas worldwide..."

COCONUT CREEK, FLORIDA, UNITED STATES AMERICA, October 28, 2015 /EINPresswire.com/ -- For over sixty years, Eugene "Jobie" Steppe has dove throughout the Florida Keys, Bahamas, Mexico, Central & South America and the Caribbean diving for lobster to earn a living. He has retired but not from Mother Ocean. Jobie began beach combing between Key Biscayne and Key West and noticed that a lot of garbage waste and floats were surrounding those areas. He was not pleased and had to do something about this.

With Jobie's new interest in art after retirement, he was inspired to turn the floats found into re-purposed flotsam and jetsam marketable art, and he is using the profits to support the removal of garbage and junk found in the mosquitoes' infested rocky mangroves and mucky swamps. "The Artist now Known as Jobie" has created the "Artistic Solution for Plastic Pollution." Since 2013, he has sold over 7,000 floats and has been using the profits to build a team to solve this problem all over the world. Every artistically painted, one of a kind float sold is a contribution to saving the earth and ocean for the children's future!
