“We are incredibly excited to once again host the Popeyes Bahamas Bowl in The Bahamas. The inaugural game was a tremendous success, and we hope to build on that by creating a wonderful VIP package for any college football enthusiast and their family. This package allows stress-free travel to The Bahamas as everything is taken care of -- from VIP tickets to the Bowl to transfers, to all-inclusive food and beverages at one of the top luxurious resorts in Nassau. The game proved last year that it was true destination event that fans across the country want to attend and support, and we hope that the Popeyes Bahamas Bowl package will make this easier,” said Greg Rolle, former Olympian, Chief Pilot and Senior Director of Sports Marketing and Sales for The Bahamas Ministry of Tourism.

While it is too early in the season to tell who will make it to the end, Week 9 has today Louisiana Tech visiting Rice, two teams that played on the final day of the regular season last year to determine the West Division title. On Saturday, in C-USA action, WKU will make its first visit to Old Dominion. UTEP, dressed in all orange uniforms, travels to Southern Miss who will be wearing their all-black home uniforms on Halloween in Hattiesburg. Marshall heads to Charlotte; the Shula Bowl will be renewed in Boca Raton when FIU makes the 45-minute trek north to face Florida Atlantic, and West Division in-state rivals UTSA and North Texas meet. Also Saturday in the MAC, UMass is at Ball State and Central Michigan goes to Akron.
