Shopping List App with an Emphasis on Simplicity - available for iPhone and Android phones

Software startup company "bitwize10" has released a shopping list app where the primary goal is simplicity - with no special or unnecessary features.

LJUBLJANA, SLOVENIA, November 25, 2015 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Software startup company bitwize10 developed a shopping list app where the primary goal is simplicity: Super Simple Shopping List. The app is not "just another" shopping list app. It is unique, as it is from ground up designed to be simple to use and dummy proof. It uses colors to organize items in categories. One or more items can be added to any category in a single step. It uses a custom layout which uses the screen space more efficiently: instead of placing items one below the other (as apps usually do), items are placed one after the other, just like words in sentences.

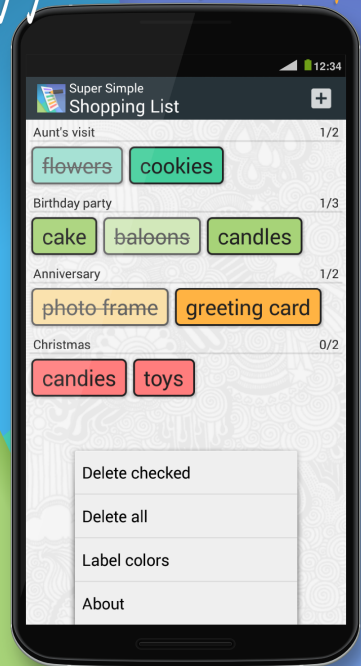

Most apps try to be better than the competition by adding as many features as possible. Super Simple Shopping List goes the opposite way. It gets rid of the clutter, so much that only the essential components are left. Despite its simplicity, the app is still versatile enough, such that advanced users will also appreciate it. The app was already reviewed by some sites, getting top scores everywhere. User reactions, comments and ratings are also highly positive.

The app is available for iOS (iPhone&iPad) and Android devices:
