One of the tracks on Malone’s MOJO DELUXE DVD “Paris” now holds extra meaning for Bob in the wake of recent terrorist attacks there. Malone, who has performed many times in the City of Light, is donating 100% of the proceeds from digital downloads of “Paris” through the end of 2015 to the family of Nick Alexander. Alexander, a tour t-shirt merchandise seller, was tragically killed with scores of others during a live music event at the Bataclan concert hall in Paris. “It’s the least I could do; he was one of us,” said Malone of the young merch seller who was well known within the music industry.

Bob spent 2015 touring extensively with his band worldwide and in August released his first new studio album in six years, MOJO DELUXE, which won rave reviews and hit #1 in the U.K. Malone has also played dozens of dates as part of Rock and Roll Hall of Famer JOHN FOGERTY’S touring band, a position he has proudly held for the past five years. Highlights include a national primetime television appearance on The Voice and playing alongside actor MICHAEL J. FOX at a charity fundraiser for Parkinson's research in New York.
