

The New Day And Night Software Behaves Differently On Day And Night

LAKSI, BANGKOK, THAILAND, January 5, 2016 /EINPresswire.com/ -- A new website script called Day and Night has been developed. The unique feature of this website script is that it allows the website to act differently on day and night. For example, if the user wants the office site to be accessed only during the office hours, the day and night software ensures that the site is not accessed beyond the office hours. The software would set the day not to redirect and set the night to redirect to somewhere else like a closed page.

The 'Many Use Case' condition also enables the user to restrict the number of users accessing the site. The timing can be set in the control panel. This works like the 'open' and 'close' sign boards that we get to see in the restaurants. The script is very flexible. The day and night script allows the user to have multiple home pages or multiple site activities depending on whether it is day or night. A free software which includes opensource and freeware for Windows, is being developed by the First Generation or the Ampare Generation.

The new Second Generation called the Defa Generation is developing software that includes paid function that can accommodate on mobile device and Windows, Mac, Linux. There are mainly two versions called the Installation Version and the Embed Script.

The InstallationVersion does not require any registration. It is a one-time payment offer and the user can access php and backend of the site or Word Press Admin. The second version is the Embed Script which is comparatively easier to use and is more practical. This can be used on every site present in the web world and can also work with blogger. It works just by typing information in the control panel. The Embed Code needs to be copied and pasted to the website.
