

CoinReverse provides online and automatic instant payment platform for Bitcoin Traders

Coin Reverse Inc. is now providing to their customers an automatic platform and a market break-through offer

NEW YORK, NY, USA, January 25, 2016 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Coin Reverse Inc. (www.coinreverse.com), New York based cryptocurrency trader announced today that it has put a "can't say no to" offer on the table for Bitcoin sellers, as it's revealing its new cryptocurrency investment policy and appetite. The company has launched a market breakthrough offer on Bitcoin trade, sustaining a buying rate which is 15% higher than Market's official rate.

The company has developed a sophisticated payment platform, offering instant payment services towards its customers. While having also developed partnerships with many international banks, CoinReverse is able to provide online automatic and instant payment, via its web-site platform, for bank transfer and Paypal payments, conditioned that the customers correctly provide their payment details.

The offer has been promoted with no time-frame, although the company explained that, according to its policy and the capacities targeted, it is likely that the offer will be just dropped, with no prior notice, the moment when sales target is reached.

CoinReverse Inc. was founded in July 2014 by former banking professional Tom Juno, who has seen the opportunity and future financial market development going on the way of technology, while cryptocurrency will flourish. "It will eventually go mainstream within the financial system and we're not very far from that point, it's only a matter of few years," declared Tom Juno, the company's CEO.

The company has started as a moderate cryptocurrency buyer and investor, having seen great business opportunity in the emergence of alternative currency markets but with no means of putting uncertainty risk at the core of its business development, up until now.

Tom Juno has on-going negotiations for becoming the first Bitcoin exchange house serving a couple of major consumer goods online vendors who are now turning their faces and policies towards Bitcoin acceptance. Along with those, discussions are getting close to signing with an important online Casino, also willing to implement Bitcoin use for its services.

In this pursuit CoinReverse has developed a purchase strategy aiming to pool all the sellers who want to benefit from the company's latest offer and who are willing to sell their Bitcoin for the best deal available on the market.
