

"HEALTHY HAPPY HOUR" TO HOST OLYMPIC ATHLETES AND TOP DOCTORS, SCIENTISTS

Health education and legal body optimization techniques to be discussed.

LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA, UNITED STATES, January 28, 2016 /EINPresswire.com/ -- This Saturday, January 30, leading sports medicine doctors and health research scientists will meet with Olympic and other premier athletes to discuss the key benefits of natural performance supplementation and techniques.

Dubbed the "Healthy Happy Hour", the two-hour event will be held at a popular sports medicine facility in Los Angeles, California, and feature roundtable conversations on topics such as: The Normalization of Cell Function to Optimize the Body's Ability to Perform Naturally; Legal Supplementation in Athletics, What You Need to Know; and Athletic Burnout Syndrome and How It Can Be Avoided with Proper Metabolic Supplementation.

"This is an exciting time for us," says Jonas McGilroy, President and CEO of Genesis Advanced Bioscience, the event sponsor. "The advances in science and natural performance enhancement methodologies have enabled us to make tangible strides in the way that athletes train and ultimately perform in competition. We are thrilled to bring together some of the best brains in medicine and science with top performers in athletics for this one-of-a-kind event."

For more than two decades, the sponsors of this event have led research and development for natural supplementation that enhances athletic performance. Genesis Advanced Bioscience is a world-class life science pioneer of natural healing, anti-aging, performance optimization, wellness and rejuvenation. They can be found online at www.Gen-Ab.com.
