Businesses Can Claim Huge Cash Refunds for Furniture, Bedding, & Carpet Padding. Class Action Settlement Pays Out $151 Million, Feb. 29th Deadline Approaches

LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA, USA, February 1, 2016 /EINPresswire.com/ -- "Businesses which bought furniture, bedding, or carpet padding between January 1999 and August 2015 can claim money in a \$151 Million dollar class action lawsuit settlement," explains David Jones, Director of the Class Action Claims Center in Los Angeles, which helps businesses claim money in major class action cases.

There is no cost or risk to file a claim, and businesses may potentially get thousands, even tens of thousands of dollars (or more) depending on their purchases. No receipts are required to file. The simple forms only take a few minutes.

Businesses qualify for money if they bought any of these products that contain "flexible polyurethane foam"

- Upholstered furniture (for example: sofas, or chairs with cushions, or throw pillows) or
- Bedding products (for example: mattresses, mattress toppers, or pillows) or
- Carpet padding (also called "underlay" or "cushion")

Businesses can place claims if they bought such products for their own use in

The huge payout stems from nine lawsuits settled after years of litigation. The cases claimed that manufacturers conspired to fix prices, causing illegal overcharges.

“Major payouts will include businesses which bought a large volume of Poly Foam products, such as motels, hotels, hospitals, furniture rental companies, apartment and office buildings, and many others,” said Jones

“Businesses can claim money for all qualifying purchases over the 17 ½ year period. Note too that Poly Foam products typically wore out or were upgraded periodically. The fund is $151 million dollars and many qualifying businesses haven’t yet filed,” Jones warned.

“A small number of claims may mean even larger payments for each business that files in time.”

Jones emphasized, “There’s no risk or cost to file a claim. And thousands of dollars is really worth grabbing.”
