

Rich Silverstein Discusses the Pitch That Landed San Francisco as This Year's Big Game Host

Shocase released a video interview with advertising legend Rich Silverstein, who helped land San Francisco as the host city of this year's Big Game.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA, UNITED STATES, February 4, 2016 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Shocase, the professional social network for marketers, today released a video interview with advertising industry legend Rich Silverstein, who played an instrumental part in landing San Francisco as the host city of this year's Big Game.

"The football game was changed because of Bill Walsh and his West Coast offense, which started here in the Silicon Valley and then spread across the league," said Silverstein, co-chairman and partner of GSP. "This is similar to how technology starts here and spreads across the country. Silicon Valley is the center of innovation and maybe it started with the West Coast offense."

The video interview, hosted by Shocase Founder and CEO Ron Young, covers the process behind the pitch and the "big idea" that drove the creative, as well as the full pitch video that was presented to all 32 NFL owners during the selection process.

A shareable version of the video can also be found on Facebook here.
