Play to Win runs and operates the most valuable Showcases and Workouts in the high school baseball and softball arenas. Focused on the true scholar-athlete, PTW offers a stage for excellence unlike any other in the country. Brian Scanlon, the firm's National Director of Operations & Strategy views the PTW events from a unique perspective. "Having been a player and coach for nine years at Babson College, I attended numerous workouts, showcases, and camps. None run as well as Play to Win. We have structured our events so that each player is seen by each coach for every aspect of the event."

PTW events are focused on getting each player noticed by doing the following:

1. Maintaining a near, or better than, 1:1 ratio of coaches to players
2. Providing education to parents & players about the recruiting process
3. Structuring the day similar to actual college practices
4. Utilizing ONE field for all events to ensure coaches see everyone and everything

With the Scholar-Athlete Baseball Workout West just a few months away, the firm encourages those students interested in being seen by the nation's premier schools to register early (https://PTW.formstack.com/forms/2016_saw_west_june21). The last nine sessions have all reached their capacity. In fact, those who register for this event before March 1st, can receive a professionally edited skills video of their performance for only $75.

"If you can only attend one event on the West Coast this summer, this is the one", concludes Cohn.
