Kelley Tree Service Signs Contract To Clean Up Tate Publishing Corporate Offices

TULSA, OK, USA, February 13, 2016
/EINPresswire.com/ -- Kelley Tree

Service of Tulsa, OK has signed a new contract to clean up the damaged trees and landscaping at the Tate Publishing corporate headquarters in Oklahoma City. The recent round of ice storms damaged millions of dollars of trees through the state of Oklahoma and clean up has been lengthy and time consuming for most people throughout the state.

Ryan Tate, the President of Tate Publishing said, "Kelley Tree Service provides the quality and insured services that most companies don't and they are able to handle jobs of all sizes while keeping costs very competitive." While widespread damage causes many tree services to flood to the state it is the best idea to work only with local businesses that have a good reputation, diverse clients lists and a local loyalty that they care about their state and considers everyone their neighbors.

Kelley Tree Service has been in operation in Oklahoma for nearly 50 years. They are a family owned and Christian company that prides themselves on doing the job right the first time and never overbids or takes advantage of desperate clients especially during times of great need after a major storm has passed through.

Joe Kelley, the owner of Kelley Tree Service said, "Serving Oklahomans has been our family's desire for nearly 5 decades, we take our job very seriously and whether it is a large corporation like Tate Publishing or a small job in any neighborhood, we treat everyone the same. Great pricing, no hassles, quality work, and we insure everything to guarantee you will come back with all of your future needs!"

If you are in the market or looking for a great local tree company with the experience and team to handle jobs of all sizes look no further - Kelley Tree Service is the perfect company for you.
