ASHLAND, MASS., UNITED STATES, February 23, 2016 /EINPresswire.com/ -- ASHLAND, Mass. — Author F. Jay Falone is set to meet with an expert screenwriter to discuss the prospect of seeing his action, adventure novel, "Time Messenger" adapted to film.

"Time Messenger" is a three-part adventure story of exciting quests and explorations. The author puts a new twist on time travel that sends scientists back 65 million years to discover an ancient civilization of advanced dinosaurs living at the site of the impending asteroid strike.

Jay is thrilled with the potential of seeing his book adapted to film and shares his vision for the movie, stating, "I would like to see the story unfold as I have written it. This is a trilogy and all 3 books are a progression of the story that would be difficult to alter."

Falone's book series has a fast paced plot that appeals to a variety of audiences and asks interesting questions and exploration of our place in time and space that reveals unexpected and even more interesting answers.

Published by Tate Publishing and Enterprises, the book is available through bookstores nationwide, from the publisher at www.tatepublishing.com/bookstore, or by visiting barnesandnoble.com or amazon.com.

"At a young age I was very interested in dinosaurs, grew up in the years of the space race and watched Neil Armstrong set foot on the moon. It was a time when everyone was an inventor. My friends and I built and launched model rockets, ran home from school to watch Lost in Space re-runs and Dark Shadows – having the engineering degree and studying some of Einstein's work on special relativity gave me some great ideas about time travel and how to combine the time travel and dinosaur theme," Falone shares on the inspiration behind his novel.

F. Jay Falone currently lives in Ashland, Massachusetts, with his wife of twenty years, Christine, and two children, Mekala and Nicholas.
