MENTOR, OHIO, USA, April 6, 2016 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Dot Ice Cream International Strategic Partnership has been formed

Get Silly Ice Cream has entered into a strategic partnership with BIG DRUM Engineering GmbH to create a global marketing campaign that will expand the international markets of both companies. Get Silly Ice Cream in conjunction with Kemps LLC, a major ice cream manufacturer in the USA, created the highly popular IttiBitz® Dot Ice Cream Product currently sold in grocery stores across the USA.

BIG DRUM Engineering GmbH is a pioneer in the development and deployment of ice cream filling machines for the world market headquartered in Germany since 1988. Get Silly Ice Cream founded in 2006, after developing proprietary technology, equipment, and expertise for Dot ice cream production, installed a state of the art Dot ice cream production facility in the USA. This strategic partnership between two privately held companies integrates harmonious technologies to provide further expansion into the global ice cream market.

Dot ice cream is also referred to as pelletized ice cream, ice cream Dots, teeny-tiny drops or bolitas are other names for the fun novelty product. Dot ice cream is produced from traditional ice cream ingredients and specially frozen using liquid nitrogen to flash freeze into pellets of ice cream.

The strategic partnership calls for Get Silly Ice Cream to provide their proprietary freezing/pelletizing ice cream technology to produce the Dots of ice cream while utilizing BIG DRUM filling equipment as well as Big Drum packaging technology. Combining specialized equipment and trade secrets these two leaders in technologies will create the first ever, commercially available turn-key pelletized ice cream production line that can be placed into the global ice cream markets.

While continuing to operate as separate businesses, the strategic partnership between BIG DRUM and Get Silly Ice Cream will build upon the integration of two leading technologies in order to attract a new segment of customers by providing startup opportunities for suitable entrepreneurs as well as established businesses looking for a comprehensive solution to enter into the ice cream market. The partnership is expected to accelerate growth for both individual companies and reflects their commitment to providing innovative solutions to ice cream industry
