

RyTech, LLC CEO Selected to Speak at Global Coworking Conference in Los Angeles

RyTech CEO Steve Ryan will join coworking leaders across the world for GCUC and will present on website trends and planning for the future.

LA GRANGE, IL, USA, April 19, 2016 /EINPresswire.com/ -- RyTech, LLC CEO Steve Ryan has been selected to speak at the Global Coworking Unconference Conference (GCUC) in Los Angeles, California on May 4, 2016. His presentation will focus on emerging design and functionality trends with websites and overall digital presence for businesses and organizations. Steve Ryan is set to discuss why it's important for a company to communicate personality and culture, and what works or doesn't work in website functionality and design.

Commenting on the industry, Steve Ryan said, "Coworking is becoming an international movement for businesses and entrepreneurs to collaborate, communicate, and share ideas with similar and dissimilar businesses." Businesses, entrepreneurs, startups, and remote workers are turning to coworking communities in an effort to collaborate and reduce overhead that comes with a traditional office space. "GCUC is bringing together international leaders in the industry to exchange in open dialogue about successfully supporting the growing industry," furthered Steve Ryan.

GCUC, which takes place May 3-6, is the largest coworking conference series in the world, and brings together mavericks in the coworking industry to share trends, insights and ideas. There are several other GCUC conferences scheduled across the world in 2016, with expected attendance of over 2,500 people total. The conference locations are in Canada, the US, South America, Australia and China.
