Morin added that apart from graphics and gameplay, players also tend to favor the MMORPGs that have fast-paced action combat, large-scale open-world PvP (player vs player) and PvE (player vs environment) battles, crafting, dynamic environments, epic story quests, and sandbox features.

"In terms of playability, all of the featured MMORPGs are different and unique. There's everything from PvP-focused indie games to big-budget AAA releases. Just the same old MMO gameplay features won't hack it these days because of increased competition from other online games.
