

International Standards Organization (ISO) sparks new awareness of Lean Six Sigma

ISO's recent release of a new international standard for Lean Six Sigma has stimulated an upsurge in training classes for this process improvement methodology.

NEWCASTLE, TYNE AND WEAR, UNITED KINGDOM, April 25, 2016 /EINPresswire.com/ -- It has

We have seen more than 50% growth since ISO released their new Lean Six Sigma standard at the end of last year and that is very encouraging for things to come.

Dave Annoni

been less than 6 months since the International Standards Organization (ISO) released its new international standard for Lean Six Sigma and training companies are already seeing an upsurge in interest for classes in this business process improvement methodology. 'We have seen renewed interest in the subject this year even though it has been over 25 years since Lean principles became mainstream in manufacturing and Six Sigma statistical control methods were promoted by the likes of Motorola, Honeywell and General Electric. Many business are now interested in becoming ISO-18404 certified just as they wanted to be ISO-9001 certified a few years ago' says John Dennis, Director of Lean Six Sigma

Training Ltd, one of the UKs specialist training companies in Lean Six Sigma methods, tools and techniques. In the US there has been similar increases in students enrolling for Lean Six Sigma certification. Dave Annoni, Lead Trainer at Lean 6 Training Inc. in Allentown, Pennsylvania says 'We have seen more than 50% growth since ISO released their new Lean Six Sigma standard at the end of last year and that is very encouraging for things to come'.
