

GlobeKeeper Boosts Safety, Enhances Security at Cooper River Bridge Run

Innovative Technology Empowers Law Enforcement Communications, Operations

GAINESVILLE, GA, UNITED STATES, April 25, 2016 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Participants and attendees of the 39th Annual Cooper River Bridge Kids Run enjoyed greater safety and enhanced security, thanks to Gainesville, Georgia-based security technology start-up GlobeKeeper. Held in the cities of Mount Pleasant and Charleston in South Carolina, the event draws 44,000 participants and poses unique challenges for officials charged with protecting the annual 10-kilometer road running event.

This year, state and local law enforcement were given the advantage of GlobeKeeper's secured communication and field collaboration platform that introduces military-grade security and encryption into agency communication devices. This essential resource for mission operations enabled South Carolina's public safety professionals to mitigate risks and comprehensively manage event condition changes in real time.

“We want to help every officer and soldier get back to their families safely — and every member of the GlobeKeeper team is committed to that vision.”

that vision.”

Recently acquired by Golden River Resources Corporation, the GlobeKeeper technology boasts a wealth of application possibilities and virtually limitless potential across a wide swath of industries. By taking existing devices — including cameras, video, GPS and Bluetooth-enabled hardware — and integrating secure communication protocols, GlobeKeeper transforms them into essential resources for mission operations, case management and resource control.
