Noplag contribution to free education

LONG ISLAND, NY, USA, May 27, 2016 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Today educators face many challenges one of which is plagiarism detection and prevention. Modern tech-savvy students have numerous opportunities and constant temptation to cheat. They can copy-paste other people's work, they can use essay and papers databases, and even have their papers written for them by someone else.

In this context, teachers face new challenges, too. Besides teaching students about plagiarism consequences, they also have to find new ways of plagiarism check and detection. For the task, plagiarism software for schools is really helpful. With this in mind, Noplag introduced their contribution to education of youth program.

Luckily for educators, modern technology brought not only new challenges but also the means to respond to the challenges. The most efficient and the least time-consuming way to detect plagiarism in student papers is using plagiarism checker software. The problem is that most plagiarism detection tools are available on a paid basis only. For many of the church and public schools already facing shortage of funds, it may be additional financial burden. Furthermore, many school administrations need time to adjust to emerging tasks, new ways of plagiarism detection in particular. That's why they may not be ready to invest money in the tools which have not proven the efficiency.

For students, detecting plagiarism in their own papers and assignments is a time-consuming and confusing task. Besides being forced to remember and understand all of the rules on plagiarism, which is not easy, they have to be sure that there is no unintentional plagiarism in their work. In view of the fact that students are most of the time overwhelmed with assignments, they may need a college plagiarism checker which would be efficient and time-saving. Still, for most of the students buying access to the software may be unaffordable.

Being a socially responsible organization, Noplag's Team has decided to invest into free and effective education program. There, at Noplag, they believe in equal education opportunities. They highly value academic integrity and originality in academic writing. Also, Noplag's Team feels strongly convinced that modern technology can and should be used for achieving goals and objectives in education. Those are the values and beliefs behind the Noplag charity for Church and Public schools program.
