PUNE, INDIA, May 27, 2016 /EINPresswire.com/
-- About the HVAC Refrigerant Market

HVAC equipment encompasses all equipment used for heating, ventilation, and air conditioning purposes. Efforts undertaken by various countries to reduce greenhouse gases (GHG) in order to protect the environment are driving the market. Shipments are likely to be driven by the need to replace some of the existing conventional equipment that emits harmful gases such as chlorofluorocarbons (CFCs) and hydro chlorofluorocarbons (HCFCs). Additionally, the market is expected to grow worldwide due to the demand for energy saving and efficiency, along with the latest innovations in the field of home automation. However, commercial spaces such as hotels and retail centers deploy centralized HVAC systems and variables refrigerant flow (VRF) systems that incur high energy bills, which is expected to inhibit market growth to a certain extent.

Technavio's analysts forecast the global HVAC refrigerant market to grow at a CAGR of 6.35% during the period 2016-2020.
