

London singers join Barry Manilow for Final Concert at the O2

LONDON, UNITED KINGDOM, June 14, 2016 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Singers from Popchoir will be performing with Barry Manilow on the final night of his 'One Last Time' tour at The O2 on Thursday 23rd June.

The choir, made up of amateur singers who perform regularly at charity and community events across London, are honoured to have been asked to take part in the concert, which will be Manilow's last ever touring performance.

Popchoir founder and director Helen Hampton said,

"We are thrilled to be singing with Barry Manilow who is a genuine superstar music legend. The fact that this will be the last night of his last ever world tour makes it even more special. It's an incredible honour, and we are rehearsed and ready, and cannot wait to be part of the show."
