

Customers respond to new iPhone solution with enthusiasm

theWTFactory's SlimClip Case, a hands-free iPhone fitness solution

ATLANTA, GA, USA, June 20, 2016 /EINPresswire.com/ -- This summer fitness experts are trying out the newest, smartest way to secure their iPhone while getting fit for the summer swimsuit season. The SlimClip Case is already making an impact on the lives of running and gym-goers alike, offering a superior alternative to fitness armbands and fanny belt solutions for securing your iPhone. It's perfect for fitness professionals of all kinds.

Grant Harring of southern California is one such example. A personal trainer by trade, he is always working to stay in top shape as well as looking for the most convenient and comfortable way to enjoy a few extra minutes at the gym. With more clients than he knows what to do with, it is as important for him to stay on top of his schedule as it is for him to keep up with his workout routine. This makes it necessary to keep track of the time, his calls, and his email. After trying out different fitness arm bands and even an embarrassing fanny-belt, he found their bulky form and awkward design were more harmful than helpful.

After trying out the SlimClip Case however, his luck turned around. By eliminating the unnecessary fabric, zippers, and clips, he can now reach his iPhone quickly and easily, to stay on top of his schedule, and in touch with his clients. Now, regular running and lifting don't have to compete with time at the office, as he can do both at the same time.

Co-founder and product developer Keith Hall offered his thoughts on the new SlimClip Case, saying "more and more we are hearing from fitness professionals and pro athletes that they prefer the SlimClip Case to using a fitness armband or a fannybelt to secure their iPhone while they run or work out. We understand that our customers are always struggling to balance a healthy fitness life with an avid social and business life, and now they will be able to do both easier than ever."

The SlimClip Case boasts the most lightweight, pared-down design of any iPhone carrier in the world. Designed to be used while running, lifting, or spending time at the gym, the product offers a range of different features that make it an ideal way for buyers to get in shape for swimsuit season. At a total of 10mm in thickness, it is just a fraction of the standard Otterbox, which is nearly four times thicker. It also features a sure grip system, as well as a unibody mold construction which means it is a single solid piece that is always easy to handle during workouts. In the off chance that the phone gets dropped, the SlimClip Case features shock absorption, which will protect it from cracking or damaging.
