

Royal Air Force explores the UK's Approach to Military Flight Training

*SMi reports (29.06.2016, London, UK):
RAF Director of Flying Training joins expert speaker line-up at the 5th Military Flight Training conference in September.*

LONDON, SELECT STATE/PROVINCE, UNITED KINGDOM, June 30, 2016 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Airbus Helicopters will shortly begin ground tests on the first of 29 H135 platforms in mid-July as part of the UK Military Flight Training System programme. With the current focus and more than a billion pounds being invested by the Ministry of Defence to continue the modernisation of military flying training in the UK, SMi's 5th Military Flight Training Conference and Exhibition will provide a platform to discuss strategies in enhancing training application and new technologies to meet the demands of 21st Century flying missions.

In line with this, SMi is proud to announce that Air Commodore David Bentley, Director of Flying Training, 22gp of the Royal Air Force has joined the senior military speaker line-up. Air Commodore Bentley will be presenting on "The UK Approach to Military Flight Training: Future Plans for the MFTS" on Day 1 of the conference at 9am.
