Keeping a baby or toddler happy, healthy and clean are very high priorities for most parents. Of course that means there's generally a high interest in products that can help in these important areas. The innovative new baby and toddler brand Ikketots understand this well. Recently, Ikketots announced the launch of their new breakthrough Baby Bandana Bibs line, designed to be a colorful and stylish bandana drool bib, that's looks as good as it is functional. Parents couldn't be happier with the news.

"We're offering a contemporary and colorful way to take care of baby and toddler drool that's quite different than the other options that had already been on the market," commented Ann Redgewell, mother, grandmother and owner of Ikketots. "This is a dream come true and a product line we are beyond passionate about."

According to the company, the Baby Bandana Bibs are designed to make sure the child stays completely dry for the whole time it's worn, being waterproof without being plastic. They cover the neck and front, picking up dribble while also acting as a teething and feeding bib. Other highlights of the Bandana Bibs, include the design being 100% cotton and completely free of dangerous chemicals and other dangers, along with every Baby Bandana Bib sold coming with a 100% satisfaction guarantee.

Early feedback from shoppers has been very positive across the board.

Amazon Customer Oketoberfest See, recently said in a five star review, "I love these bibs. My son is a super drooler and has to wear multiple bibs a day. I love that this compliments his outfit rather than looking like he's always ready to eat a meal. We get so many compliments every time we're out or whenever they're seen in pictures. The print fabric is soft and colorful and the lining fabric is also soft and thick and absorbs a good bit of drool. I would definitely recommend these and will buy more in the future. And this price they are such a great value.”

Jacqui Bester, Top Mommy Blogger and owner of 'onemessymama' blog just recently featured both sets of Ann's bibs on this month's edition of her blog. She says: I love the fact that Ann has such a personal relationship with her brand! I personally have been battling to find bibs that fit so great. My little Daisy has worn them everyday! I can't wait to gift these to friends!
