

eBRAAM & DEAN BOWMAN ALBUM: THE EXTRAORDINARY LOVE STORY OF AYE AYE AND FEDOR RELEASED ON RUBY FLOWER RECORDS

Aye Aye and Fedor's album is a treat and will become a favourite for children. The story glides through a magical and victorious universe.

REDU, BELGIUM, August 3, 2016 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Ana Isabel Ordonez's "Extraordinary Love Story of Aye Aye and Fedor" album is a treat! This will become a favourite for children who dream of a life on the stage. To kids who love animals, dancing or acting, this venture will seem a magical place in a Musical Forest, and every detail--from the outstanding narration of singer Dean Bowman to eBraam's phenomenal Jazz-rock compositions--is fascinating. Children who don't fantasise about performing, however, will probably be mystified by the detail about every aspect of the tale. The inclusion of child-alike illustrations, will make sense to listeners; those who would love to be Aye Aye or Fedor probably will be acting out the tracks.

Following the narration and music, the story glides through a magical and victorious universe. Ordonez's lighthearted drawings match the incredible tone of Bowman's narration and eBraam's music; both basis of ballet as choreographed by Virginie Mecene of Martha Graham Academy in New York and by Sifiso Kweyama of Jazzart Dance Theatre in Cape Town, South Africa, where the ballet will be performed this fall as part of the festivities honouring long time Apartheid fighter, Social Rights activist and Peace Nobel Laureate Desmond Tutu.

For those who haven't read the book, the cd will be an appealing tool. Ana Isabel's books happen in her very astute and strong-minded universe, a place where this Biologist and ingenious writer take charge a series of stories about a female lemur Aye Aye, who leads a zoo to a new kind of magical happy jungle: The Musical Forest.

Animals on Ordonez's journey are threatened like the lemur Aye Aye and Fedor, a white lion, who is protective with the adoptive family of animals and learn the old wive's tale of the jungle from Licec, a sleeky black panther, "Aye Aye and Licec the Black Panther". Subtle lessons in conciliation, love, friendship, non-sense, humour, loyalty, and tribal law float about these imaginative tales.

This first Musical Forest narration & music's album about the extraordinary love story of two threaded animals, Aye Aye and Fedor is recounted by master singer, Dean Bowman, with a new special talent for entertaining audiences of all ages. The music was composed by pianist Michiel Braam.

Let's hope Ana Isabel will continue with the great series, and we will see more narration-music-ballet releases of such tales as "How Roibeard Helps Sorley the Cheetah" a story about an anguished cheetah and his battle against selfishness, insecurity and fears. Roibeard's redemption from his dissipation "How Aye Aye Met Roibeard the Giraffe" and "Aye Aye, Professor Tekyp and Hyperbrits" in which the Musical Forest witnesses a farcical ritual and get honoured by Professor Tekyp" awareness and lexicon!

Get the first cd of the series now, this edition with Dean Bowman and eBraam promises to enchant children and adults as it brings the pleasure of hearing this unique story for the first time. The album is released on Ruby Flower Records, an indie label devoted to avant garde Jazz and new music, founded by trumpeter Herb Robertson & Ana Isabel who is without a doubt an inimitable woman having the knack for blending unconventional candour in the soul of a naughty child!
