We know they only have a certain amount of time to eat, and especially in the winter months it can be tough to get off the base, or out of the office during lunch,”

Dante Alario

Brick House, which is owned by the father & son duo of James & Dante Alario, is also offering catering specials for local offices as well as the Picatinny Arsenal for lunch or dinner. “We know they only have a certain amount of time to eat, and especially in the winter months it can be tough to get off the base, or out of the office during lunch,” said (Dante) Alario. “We’re hoping that in offering delivery, which many places around here don’t, that we can help make lunch time a bit less monotonous.” With football season quickly approaching, they have also put together a variety of football-themed catering specials and have already added a variety of catering packages designed for family or private parties.
