Having access to interaction with native English speakers has always been the best way to rapidly improve fluency, and now one American college professor has a brand-new course that gives Chinese people a chance to improve their skills in a fun and completely unique way. Professor Dawn Cordray, of Heritage University has created a new course, "Movie Talk"— the only class of its kind to offer this unique format.

Movie Talk meets online once a week for a two-hour class. During the first hour Professor Cordray and professional American actors read a popular movie script (like Avatar, Titanic, Marvel Avengers, etc.) with the students, explaining the difficult passages. During the second hour Professor Cordray leads an in-depth discussion where students get a chance to talk about the movie, thereby practicing their speaking skills and getting immediate correction.

This course is designed for students who already speak English well and want to bring their fluency level up to the point where they are comfortable holding a conversation about any topic.

In addition this course's unique format with a chance to talk with multiple American speakers at once, another bonus; the course also gives students access to Professor Cordray herself all week, in case anyone has a quick question. This can be invaluable.

Each class will be recorded and students can get a copy of the class to listen to again for review purposes.

"I wanted to design of course around something everyone loves," Professor Cordray said. "Everyone loves superheroes. Everyone loves Avatar. If you can learn to talk about these movies with enthusiasm, you can meet any challenge in the English language."
