

Pool Test Strip Inventor Strikes Again With Sutro

Previous water technologies area manager Mark Stephenson will be joining Sutro, a cutting-edge water monitoring tech company based in San Francisco, California.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA, UNITED STATES, August 16, 2016 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Previous water technologies area manager Mark Stephenson will be joining Sutro, a cutting-edge water monitoring tech company based in San Francisco, California. Stephenson has served as the CEO for a number of water technology start-ups, including Environmental Test Systems, BioQuest and Pionetics Corporation.

Combined with Stephenson's 25 years of experience in the drinking water, wastewater, and industrial water markets, Sutro's sensor will be suited to deploy in almost any body of water.

Ravi Kurani, CEO at Sutro

“As Sutro revs up development to launch our product, Mark's experience with both the pool industry and working in China is invaluable. Mark was at the forefront of introducing test strips in the '80s with current water testing leader Aquacheck, spa care automation in the 2000s with BioQuest, and is now working with Sutro to bring the industry into the 21st century,” said Ravi Kurani, Sutro's co-founder and CEO. “We're about to disrupt the water monitoring industry, and Mark's expertise in water technology from pools to wastewater aligns with our strategy moving forward.”

The future of Sutro is in the applicability of its patent-pending sensor technology. CTO and co-founder Andrew Redfern is an expert of embedded software. Combined with Stephenson's 25 years of experience in the drinking water, wastewater, and industrial water markets, Sutro's sensor will be suited to deploy in almost any body of water. Stephenson's knowledge paves the way for integration with municipal wastewater markets, as well as licensing, technology transfer, and collaborative research with China. Launching in the pool and spa industry, Sutro has its sights set on the $600B global water market.

Sutro's CEO Ravi Kurani has been in the pool industry for over 25 years. Located at 9 Pier, San Francisco 94111, Sutro prides itself on providing solutions for water and developing a high quality product, bringing the pool industry into the 21st century.
